A List of Haskins Laboratories' Publications on Speech.

As promised in SR-1, we are submitting for general reference a list of Haskins Laboratories' publications on speech. We regret that we can supply reprints of only the most recent articles.

Articles and Books

Voyelles synthétiques à deux formants et voyelles cardinales. Le Maître Phonétique, 96, 30-37 (1951).

A study of one of the stimulus correlates for the perception of the unvoiced stop consonants, p, t and k. A.M. Liberman, P.C. Delattre and F.S. Cooper. Amer. J. Psych., 64, (1951).

Some experiments on the perception of synthetic speech sounds. F.S. Cooper, P.C. Delattre, A.M. Liberman J.M. Borst and L.J.

The discrimination of relative onset-time of the components of certain speech and nonspeech patterns. A.M. Liberman, K.S. Harris,

On Hultzén's 'Voiceless lenis stops in prevocalic clusters.'

Abstracts and Reviews

Rate and duration of change in formant frequency as cues for the identification of speech sounds. J. Acoust. Soc. Amer., 26, 952 (1954) (A)

Effect of third-formant transitions on the perception of the voiced stop consonants. K.S. Harris, H.S. Hoffman, P.C. Delattre

Electromyography as a speech research technique with an application to labial stops. G. Lysaught, R.J. Rosov and K.S. Harris. J. Acoust. Soc. Amer., 33, 842 (1961) (A)

Research Films

Damascan Arabic X-Ray Film in Slow Motion with Stretched Sound. A.S. Abramson, C. Ferguson, R. Schlaeger and D. Zeichner. Columbia University, Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center and Haskins Laboratories. (1962).

Other Papers and Talks Presented

The following papers and talks were also presented during the quarter. The texts have not been included because the talks were delivered from outline.

Linguistics and speech perception. A.S. Abramson. Graduate Colloquium Series, Department of Audiology and Speech Sciences, Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana. 5 February 1965.

Why is speech perceived so well? A.M. Liberman. Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio. 19 April 1965.

_________ Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pennsylvania. 20 April 1965.

_________ Center for Cognitive Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts. 29 April 1965.
