Contents

Phonological and Articulatory Characteristics of Spoken Language
Carol A. Fowler ................................................................. 1

Characteristics of Speech as a Motor Control System
Vincent L. Gracco .......................................................... 13

Sensorimotor Mechanisms in Speech Motor Control
Vincent L. Gracco ......................................................... 27

Analysis of Speech Movements: Practical Considerations and Clinical Application
Vincent L. Gracco .......................................................... 45

Reiterant Speech as a Test of Nonnative Speakers’ Mastery of the Timing of French
Andrea G. Levitt .............................................................. 59

Syllable-internal Structure and the Sonority Hierarchy: Differential Evidence from Lexical Decision, Naming, and Reading
Andrea Levitt, Alice F. Healy, and David W. Fendrich .......... 73

Effects of Phonological and Phonetic Factors on Cross-Language Perception
Catherine T. Best and Winifred Strange ......................... 89

Plausibility, Parsimony, and Theories of Speech
Alvin M. Liberman .......................................................... 109

The Relation of Speech to Reading and Writing
Alvin M. Liberman .......................................................... 119

Linguistic Awareness and Orthographic Form
Ignatius G. Mattingly ....................................................... 129

The Effects of Aging and First Grade School on the Development of Phonological Awareness
Shlomo Bentin, Ronen Hammer, and Sorel Cahan ................ 141

Bi-alphabetism and the Design of a Reading Mechanism
Laurie Beth Feldman ....................................................... 147

Morphological Analysis of Disrupted Morphemes: Evidence from Hebrew
Laurie Beth Feldman and Shlomo Bentin ......................... 163

Phonetic Recoding of Print and Its Effect on the Detection of Concurrent Speech in Amplitude Modulated Noise
Ram Frost ................................................................. 179
Processing Phonological and Semantic Ambiguity: Evidence From Semantic Priming at Different SOAs
Ram Frost and Shlomo Bentin .............................................................. 191

Attention Mechanisms Mediate the Syntactic Priming Effect in Auditory Word Identification
Avital Deutsch and Shlomo Bentin .......................................................... 205

Starting on the Right Foot: A review of Marilyn Jager Adams' Beginning to Read: Thinking and Learning about Print
Donald Shankweiler ............................................................................... 221

Null Subject vs. Null Object: Some Evidence from the Acquisition of Chinese and English
Qi Wang, Diane Lillo-Martin, Catherine T. Best, and Andrea Levitt .................. 225

Amplitude as a Cue to Word-initial Consonant Length: Pattani Malay
Arthur S. Abramson ............................................................................ 251

Tone Splits and Voicing Shifts in Thai: Phonetic Plausibility
Arthur S. Abramson and Donna M. Erickson ............................................ 255

A Constraint on the Expressive Timing of a Melodic Gesture: Evidence from Performance and Aesthetic Judgment
Bruno H. Repp .................................................................................... 263

A Review of Carol L. Krumhansl's Cognitive Foundations of Musical Pitch
Bruno H. Repp .................................................................................... 277

Toward an Emancipation of the "Weaker Sense"
Bruno H. Repp .................................................................................... 283

Appendix .............................................................................................. 289